

Fairtree Fixed Income SNN Retail Hedge Fund Minimum Disclosure Document - Class 1

31 December 2019

Fund Profile

The fund invests in South African fixed income instruments to take advantage of relative value opportunities across the short and long end of the FRA, bond and swap yield curve. Idea generation flows from jointly formulating a macro view of global and local South African macro parameters. These views are analysed against existing market expectations and tested against the portfolio. The long term return target of the fund is Cash plus 10%.

Investment Strategy

The portfolio is a long/short fixed income hedge fund. It is focused on extracting pure alpha returns from South African capital markets. These returns are accessed through fundamental knowledge of South African instruments vis-à-vis economic growth and broad economic themes as well as medium and long-term relative valuation opportunities.

Market Commentary

South African assets performed well over the month of December as global economic sentiment improved. The 10-year government bond (R2030) yield closed -19bps lower at 9.02%. The All Bond Index returned 1.9% over the month to bring the year to date return to 10.3%, while the All Share Index rose 3.3% to bring the year to date return to 12.1%. The Rand gained around 4.7% against the US dollar. Foreigners bought more than R6bn local bonds during the month.

Global equities were up 2.9%, improving the year to date returns to 25.2% while emerging market equities were up 7.7%, taking the year to date return to 15.4%. Sentiment turned more optimistic and the outlook for growth improved as the trade tension between the US and China eased and Brexit tail risks declined. Global economic activity data also improved suggesting the global manufacturing downturn may have bottomed while consumers and the services side of the global economy remains healthy. Despite this improvement in the data the global central banks signalled that monetary policy will remain accommodative for a prolonged period. The ECB is set to continue with asset purchases until inflation return, the Fed remains on hold and continue to expand their balance sheet and the PBOC in China announced a further RRR cut early in 2020. This easing of financial conditions, reduction in geo-political risk and improving economic activity should support risk assets over the medium term. However, there are risks that may escalate quickly. The tension between the US and Iran is building and although neither party would want a war one cannot exclude the potential for political miscalculation by one side.

In South Africa, the political and economic reforms are happening at a slow pace while operational and financial challenges at Eskom continue to pose the biggest downside risk to the economy. Ongoing electricity load shedding will be a drag on growth and the country's fiscal health. The World Bank has downgraded SA's growth to 0.9% for 2020 and the risk of ratings downgrade by Moody's has risen to an almost certainty. Local assets are already reflecting a large portion of the downside scenario, signs of any economic improvement remain absent. While fiscal risks remain on the horizon the SARB's hands are tied when it comes to providing more relief via monetary policy, despite inflation falling and surprising to the downside
