

Fairtree Fixed Income SNN Retail Hedge Fund Minimum Disclosure Document - Class 1

30 June 2019

Fund Profile

The fund invests in South African fixed income instruments to take advantage of relative value opportunities across the short and long end of the FRA, bond and swap yield curve. Idea generation flows from jointly formulating a macro view of global and local South African macro parameters. These views are analysed against existing market expectations and tested against the portfolio. The long term return target of the fund is Cash plus 10%.

Investment Strategy

The portfolio is a long/short fixed income hedge fund. It is focused on extracting pure alpha returns from South African capital markets. These returns are accessed through fundamental knowledge of South African instruments vis-à-vis economic growth and broad economic themes as well as medium and long-term relative valuation opportunities.

Market Commentary

South Africa government bonds rallied over June in tandem with global bond markets. The 10-year government bond (R2030) yield closed -29bps lower at 8.82%. The bond curve steepened as the 30yr government bond yields decreased only -8bps. The All Bond Index returned +2.3% over the month to bring the year to date return to 7.7%, while the All Share Index rose 4.8% to bring the year to date return to 12.2%. The Rand gained around 3.5% against the US dollar. Foreigners sold around R15bn local bonds.

Global equities rallied and bonds rallied as global economic activity continued to slow, forcing central bankers to take a more dovish turn. Risk assets also benefited from a trade truce struck between Donald Trump and Xi Jinping. Trump agreed to hold off on any further increases in trade tariffs as trade negotiations resumed. This is welcome development, but we don't believe that it reduces the uncertainty surrounding the trade conflict between China and the US. Geo-political tension increased further as the US increased sanctions on Iran. Iran has since threatened to disrupt oil transportation through the Strait of Hormuz which caused the oil price to rally.

With increasing political and global growth uncertainty on the horizon, both the Fed and ECB has committed to ease monetary policy further. We expect to Fed to cut rates at least twice this year, with the first cut expected in July. The market continues to see 4 cuts of 25bps each over the next 12 months. Given that the labour market dynamics remain strong we don't see the Fed easing as much. Recent weak economic data has been driven by a contraction in manufacturing activity surveys while service sectors continue to expand at decent pace. Economic data from China suggests that the economy may have bottomed and is improving although at a slower pace than expected. European data has also shown some signs of potential stabilisation but still remains weak on aggregate.

Locally, hard economic data remained very weak, although some data points have improved. Early indications from manufacturing and retail sales suggest that the economy may have grown around 2% during the second quarter. Activity on aggregate remain weak due to lack of confidence and economic reforms. We believe the SARB will respond by cutting interest rates by at least 25bps over its next two meetings. Inflation expectations have fallen and should soon run below 5%. Concerns around Eskom and credit risk continue to weigh on long end bonds and has caused the yield curve to steepen. We expect to soon hear about a turnaround plan for Eskom. We expect growth to remain weak over the near term but improve towards year end.
