

Fairtree Wild Fig Multi Strategy SNN QI Hedge Fund

Minimum Disclosure Document - Class 1

30 November 2018

Fund Profile

The Fairtree Wild Fig Multi Strategy SNN QI Hedge Fund is diversified across three asset classes, equities; fixed income and commodities, with the strategic long term allocation framework seeking maximum asset class diversification in its portfolio construction technique. Tactical asset allocation decisions are taken to ensure the fund is appropriately exposed to the most attractive opportunity sets, without foregoing the benefit of a degree of asset class diversification. The portfolio is rebalanced at least monthly. Capital is allocated across the various strategy teams within the asset classes, with additional risk allocation introducing a further degree of gearing.

Investment Strategy

The portfolio invests in several strategies over various instruments, asset classes and portfolios. It combines a strategic risk allocation which provides the optimal diversification benefit across the various strategies, with tactical risk allocation to the most attractive opportunity sets as identified on a bottom up basis.

*The inception date for the portfolio is 31 August 2010. The historical performance figures until the end of 31 March 2017 reflect performance achieved prior to CISCA regulation. The portfolio has been transitioned under CISCA regulations on 1 April 2017 and has since been managed as a regulated product. The annualized total return is the average return earned by an investment each year over a given time period, since date of the launch of the fund. Actual annual figures are available from the manager on request. The highest and lowest 1 year returns represent the highest and lowest actual returns achieved during a 12 month rolling period year since the original launch date of the portfolio. The performance figures given show the yield on a Net Asset value ("NAV") basis. The yield figure is not a forecast. Performance is not guaranteed and investors should not accept it as representing expected future performance. Individual investor performance may differ as a result of initial fees, time of entry/actual investment date, date of reinvestment, and dividends withholding tax. Performance is calculated for a lump sum investment on a Net Asset Value basis. The performance figures are reported net of fees with income reinvested.

Risk Profile

Risk Level:	Low	Low-Medium	Medium	Med-High	High
-------------	-----	------------	--------	----------	------

The risk category shown is not guaranteed and may change over time. The lowest category does not mean the investment is risk free. There may be other special areas of risk relating to the investment including liquidity risk, credit risk, market risk, and settlement risk. Sanne Management Company (RF) (Pty) Ltd, ("the manager"), and the investment manager do not render financial advice. Our risk indicator does not imply that the portfolio is suitable for all types of investors. You are advised to consult your financial adviser.

Portfolio Valuation & Transaction Cut-Off

Portfolios are valued monthly. The cut off time for processing investment subscription is 10:00am on the last day of the month prior to enable processing for investment on the first day of the next month.

Total Expense Ratio

A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER may not necessarily be an accurate indication of future TER's. Transaction Costs are a necessary cost in administering the financial product and impacts financial product returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of financial product, the investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER. The TER is reported excluding performance fees for the first six months of the portfolio. The Manager has applied its mind hereto and is of the view that any reporting of TER with performance fee at this stage may be inaccurate and potentially misleading to investors.

Market Commentary

Emerging market assets outperformed developed markets over the month as sentiment improved. Early in the month the US mid-term elections produced a split congress with the Republicans retaining the Senate but losing the House to the Democrats. These results dampened expectations of a fresh round of tax cuts and raised expectations of a cease fire on the trade conflict between the US and China. This backdrop along with softer incoming US data gave the Fed some scope to dial back on their hawkish narrative. The market responded by reducing the number of hikes expected by the Fed during 2019, from two to one and the real rate dropped taking US 10 year bond yields from a 3.25% peak to below 3%. Lower rates and softer outlook for the US has also added pressure on the US dollar to weaken. Other factors supporting emerging markets has been 30% drop in oil price over the last two months and policy makers in China announcing measures to support the consumer via lower taxes.

Growth outside the US remains weak. Weakening Chinese economic activity and the threat of increased tariffs should be offset by easing measures taken by Chinese authorities. However we only expect the Chinese data to stabilise during H1-2019. European economic activity has also slowed with Germany recording negative growth over the third quarter and political and fiscal challenges in France and Italy curbing investor confidence. We expect the ECB to remain accommodative for a prolonged period with the possibility of announcing another round of low interest lending measures (i.e. LTRO's) to support activity. In the UK uncertainty around Brexit is also weighing on growth. However, the biggest risk to emerging markets and global risk assets remains deterioration in the US/China relationship.

Locally economic data remains weak, while concerns around fiscal and reform policies have grown. Renewed operational and financial challenges around Eskom and uncertainty around land policies continue to weigh on investor confidence and the country's credit rating. After two quarters of negative growth South Africa recorded stronger than expected growth over Q3 of 2.2% annualised supported by manufacturing, retail activity, financial services and agriculture. The SARB decided to hike rates to 6.75% earlier in the month, noting that the risks to inflation have increased enough to act. No mention was made about future hikes. We believe any further hikes depend on some of the upside risks mentioned actually materialising. Currently inflation has been well behaved and continues to surprise somewhat to the downside but the risks remain to the upside.

The Fairtree Multi Strategy portfolios responded well given the above-mentioned backdrop of macro-economic indicators and the broader market dynamics which are evolving as we move closer to the end of the year. Global equity markets rebounded from a very difficult October to recover slightly during November (S&P 500 Index adding 1.79% in Dollar terms and the S&P Global 1200 Index returning 1.06% to investors). However, the JSE All Share index did not follow these global markets higher, but rather posting a rather disappointing -3.17% loss to follow October's -5.76%. Thereby contracting 12.56% during the 3-months ending November 2018. Undoubtedly the USD/ZAR appreciation of 6.09% likely had an impact on the equity market's performance during the month. JSE All Bond index provided some relief in returning +3.87% to investors during November.

The multi strategy portfolio managed to navigate this turmoil well, returning -0.82% and +0.09% respectively between Wild Fig and Woodland during Sep '18 to Nov '18. Net Exposure in the portfolio decreased during the last five months to end below the fund's long-term average and target band. The equity relatively value strategies performed well with a positive contribution to the portfolio during November, while the directional strategies ended the month marginally negative. Fixed Income and Commodity strategies' diversification qualities in the portfolio was evident through positive contributions of between 1.5% and 0.4% respectively, ensuring that the portfolios recovered from the previous month's drawdown by posting positive returns in November.

Equities: The outlook for global earnings growth remains positive supported by above trend growth. We expect global inflation to pick up gradually over the medium term supported loose fiscal policies and higher input costs. The global reflationary outlook favours cyclical stocks, while the outlook for higher global bond yields weighs on high valuation of defensive names. As yields rise and volatility increase valuations and earnings potential will be questioned more frequently. We believe the overall South Africa equity index will follow global equity markets higher due to its externalised nature. We remain cautiously optimistic on domestic equities as we believe economic activity will improve over the next 12 months. We like global cyclical assets with global earnings growth potential and companies with the ability to generate cash sustainably. We continue to find protection in gold stocks and ZAR hedged assets.

Fixed Income: South Africa's inflation will rise over the next few months. Given current weak economic activity and rising inflationary pressures the SARB will be cautious in raising rates. The SARB remains focussed on anchoring inflation expectations closer to 4.5%. Yields have risen to reflect growth and fiscal (e.g. Eskom) weakness. We look for signs of an improvement in the emerging market back drop and local economic environment to become more constructive on bonds.

Currency: We believe the US dollar strength has stabilised. Given the potential for global growth to converge we believe the US dollar could weaken over the medium term.

Alternatives: Stronger global growth will allow less accommodative monetary policy and looser fiscal policies which should lead to higher interest rates, volatility and lower correlations amongst asset classes and securities. Market rotations and increased dispersion has typically led to a more favourable environment for alternative assets to perform.
